Itchen College were working in partnership with Seetec on a digital Course for beginners. One learner on this course had a fear of working with a laptop, and was angry that he did was unable to get a job.

During the 4-week course, we saw his confidence grow. He was able to use the internet to support him in finding work and improving his CV.

As we were finding out about the group through various activities, they quickly bonded as a team and began to understand each other's strengths. We discovered that this learner did a lot for charity to support his son's illness. Together the group produced a flyer for his next charity event. Not only did his confidence grow, but he could also see how the team supported him. He was very proud to share his story and what the charity did with them.

For this learner, this was more than a digital skills course. By the end of the course he was able to produce a Power Point and present it all the group and advisors from Seetec.
