Subject: Something I would love to share

Dear Mrs Gupta,

I hope you are well and enjoying these beautiful days.

I have been meaning to write to you for some time to share how much these past three years in your English course have meant to me. Studying with you has truly been a transformative experience. Little by little, I have gained confidence, expanded my vocabulary, and felt increasingly able to use English in different areas of my life.

Recently, after some time of learning and improving my English, my eldest daughter (who is thirteen), and I set ourselves a challenge: to write a book together. We wanted to create something meaningful about how she can learn to love herself, even with her condition of vitiligo. The process has been incredibly enriching and empowering for both of us. It has motivated us greatly and strengthened our bond. The book is called Spots of Light, and I am so proud of what we accomplished together.

Inspired by that experience, I also wrote another small book with my younger daughter, Grace, who is eight years old. It is about little animals and has been another beautiful challenge that grew out of the confidence and skills I have developed through your classes.

I am also sharing two Flipbook links with you, so that you can have a look at a small part of each book. I would be delighted if you had the opportunity to see a glimpse of what we have created.

I simply wanted to share these small fruits of the investment you make in students like me who are learning English as a second language. Your teaching has been efficient, professional, and always encouraging. I truly enjoy your lessons and feel deeply grateful for all that I have learned under your guidance.

Thank you very much for your dedication and for believing in your students.

With warm regards,
